Set amid the armada of bustling home and garden stores, French bakeries, newsstands, and cafes that has transformed this once sleepy stretch of Russian Hill into a stroller's and shopper's paradise is the aptly named Prize. A pink-and-red striped awning announces this tiny boutique that specializes in early 20th century furniture and French and Italian chandeliers. One week you might find a vintage metal apothecary cabinet filled with antique Steiff animal puppets; the next a 1930s French mirrored table set with hotel silver teapots and old glass cake pedestals. Prize also stocks European monogrammed linens and bedding, letterpress cards and stationery, baby gifts and goods, and French coffee and chocolate. There are usually a few choice loving-cup trophies on hand as well—so you're assured of taking home a genuine prize to display on the mantel.
